Jesus in the Blessed Sacrament, have mercy on us.

Canon's Ramblings

My long distance ramble across the Diocese came to an end last weekend and it was good to be home. It was nice to share the final stage of the journey with a number of our own parishioners and despite a wet start the sun was shining when we finally reached Alkborough. I enjoyed the whole journey and I met many inspiring people on my travels. I noted that most parishes are facing similar challenges to our own, but that there is much good will amongst people and a desire to serve the Gospel and the mission of the Church.

It was an eventful day last Sunday with the Sine Nomine Choir joining us for our morning Mass and young people from our parish and deanery being actively involved in our evening Mass. Both were wonderful occasions indeed. I particularly hope that this might be the start of more involvement of our young people and we have further activities planned the next being a visit to the Seafarers Centre at Immingham in July.

This week also saw a visit to our primary school from Bishop Patrick as part of the Golden Jubilee Celebrations and I will reflect more on this next weekend.
